ALBUQUERQUE.....NEW MEXICO

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 15, 1905.

An Object Lesson

A CAMPAIGN waged for the purpose of trying to make congress believe that a majority of the people were in favor of making two states out of Oklahoma and Indian Territory has just closed, and the result has been just about the same as the result of such a campaign would be in New Mexico. An election was held and the people voted directly upon the proposition to take independent action by the two territories, and ask congress to admit them as two states. The returns are now all in and the figures show that just one voter in every seven cast his ballot in favor of the proposition. The office-holders and political schemers had been making just as much noise about the matter as they make here, and claiming even more than the anti-statehooders in New Mexico. In fact they went a little ahead of the corporation howlers in Arizona, and claimed that absolutely everybody was opposed to the union of the two territories in one state, and after making the most vigorous campaign that it was possible for them to make they were able to poll just one-seventh of the total vote cast. And that is just about what the result of such an election would be in New Mexico—though in Arizona—owing to the influence of the big corporations, they might be able to do a little better, but even that is doubtful. Their capital is mostly wind, and that doesn't count in the returns.

Reviewing the result of the campaign made and the vote taken in favor of the state of "Sequoyah," the Bartlesville Daily Enterprise has an editorial under the caption of "The Parole Is Ended," in which it says:

"Yesterday witnessed the final act in the Sequoyah comedy. After a campaign of bluff, intimidation, misrepresentation and ignorance the movement which was born in the minds of a few selfish politicians for political purposes only was given a very fitting quietus by the people. Sequoyah may now rest easily in his grave. There will be no two-penny state to bring his memory into disrepute."

In reading the report given above by the Enterprise, of the "Sequoyah" campaign, one cannot fail to notice what a life-like picture the writer paints of the campaign which has been carried on for nearly a year by the anti-statehood xumpers of New Mexico. But the election has done good, for it has enabled the world to see just how hollow and baseless were the claims of those who were opposing the admission of Oklahoma, and congress can safely assume that there is just as little solid matter in the great volume of drivel that is sent out by the anti-statehoodites in this territory, and that the result would be just the same here as it has been there, if the people of New Mexico could be given the same chance to be heard upon the question.

The object of those who are opposing the present statehood movement in New Mexico and Arizona, while ostensibly to prevent the union of the two territories in one state, is in reality to prevent statehood in any form. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "Their separate admission (New Mexico and Arizona) is not seriously thought of by anybody in congress, except a corporal's guard, who will be laughed at if they make any proposition of that sort." The anti-union people know that as well as the editor of the Globe-Democrat, and their pretense of believing that "we can get in alone if we vote down joint statehood," is simply for the purpose of defeating what they know to be the only form of statehood that we can possibly get. It is important that the friends of these territories in congress should bear these facts in mind, and not permit the progressive people of New Mexico and Arizona to be made the victims of false pretenses on the part of those who would sacrifice the public good to their own private ends.

JUDGE PARKER probably thinks that being a Tammany attorney is not quite as respectable as running for president on the democratic ticket—but it pays better.

A Grand Exhibit

A STATEMENT of the condition of the First National bank of Albuquerque, at the close of business on November 9, appears elsewhere in the Morning Journal today, and shows by many dollars the largest totals ever shown by any bank statement in New Mexico. The First National of Albuquerque is regarded, not only by our own people, but by the business world in general, as one of the most substantial and reliable financial institutions in the country—an institution which any town the size of Albuquerque, anywhere in the United States, might reasonably be proud of.

The statement published this morning exhibits totals amounting to $3,130,784.81—showing a volume of business that would do credit to any bank in a town twice the size of Albuquerque.

Should Receive Attention

THERE are two matters of more than ordinary importance before the public just now which demand and should receive the careful and business like attention of the people of Albuquerque. We refer to the Associated Charities and the Territorial fair. It is true that a few individuals take a praiseworthy interest in both these matters, but the people of the community generally do not give to them the attention which their importance to the city demands.

The charity movement involves a plain duty, which rests alike upon all of us and should receive the attention and hearty co-operation of all of us. "The poor ye have always with you"—is just as true now as it was nineteen hundred years ago, and has particular emphasis in our case because a large majority of the poor we have with us, locally, are not only as poor as the poor of any other community, but are sorely afflicted with disease as well as poverty, and every sentiment of humanity demands their relief at our hands, not only in the way of food and clothing, but medical treatment and care besides. For these all-sufficient reasons, and for our own credit, it is to be hoped that the people of Albuquerque will give to this most worthy movement that attention and assistance which the importance of its character demands.

The Territorial fair is also a matter that concerns all classes of the community, but unlike the other, it is a matter of cold business—just such a question as confronts one when he is considering the advisability of making an investment in real estate or merchandise—"will it pay?" Under proper and business-like management, the fair costs the town, in subscriptions and otherwise, about twenty thousand dollars a year, and brings to the town from outsiders, anywhere from seventy-five to one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars a year. Is the margin of profit sufficient to warrant us in making the necessary investment? Can we, as a community, afford to put up, or guarantee, the sum necessary to finance the coming year's fair and provide for the past year's deficit, in view of the practical certainty of getting back, next fall, four or five times as much as the amount we invest, in addition to the indirect benefit we receive through the valuable advertising which the fair does for the town, not only throughout New Mexico but all over the rest of the country besides. It is a plain business proposition, for the consideration of business men. Will five hundred per cent pay?
